Francisco is a model with a huge heart, who traveled to Haiti after the tragedy of 2010.

“I’ll never forget how I felt when I arrived and saw so much destruction.”

Tell us about your childhood.

I was born in Cordoba, I am the fifth of six children. When I was only one year old my parents decided to move to Buenos Aires, where they are originally from. So that we could say that I am from there.

What do you mean when you say that your lifestyle provided that you could go to many different places?

When I was 9 years old, my parents joined an international group of volunteers who founded various projects in the provinces mentioned. Some of the projects were: dining and picnic areas in agricultural areas, courses of values for children in critical situations, regular visits to hospitals, orphanages and nursing home therapies of joy, among other activities.

How did you participate there?

The memories are many and unique. As a boy I was taught a lot of music and art in general, because we used it a lot in the different projects. For example, every Christmas among us we would assemble a small choir, with which we sang in many places throughout the month of December to spread the Christmas spirit and bring hope and love on this special day. Entering my teen years I learned different skills such as building shapes with balloons, face painting, and together with my brothers and other volunteers we performed educational shows at schools and kindergartens. This was a lot of fun! At age 18 I had the opportunity of a lifetime. I traveled to Haiti, along with one of my brothers, after the terrible tragedy in early 2010.

How was this opportunity accomplished?

We could make this trip because of a person of Buenos Aires who offered passages back and forth. We felt it was an honor and a dream was fulfilled ahead of us. Eager we moved into the adventure without knowing anyone on the other side, with funds ridiculously low, we trusted that everything has a meaning in life.

How did you feel when you arrived and saw the chaos that was there?

I’ll never forget how I felt when I arrived and saw so much destruction. We arrived at dusk and minutes after our landing there was a tropical storm which only occur in Caribbean countries. I panicked. Fortunately, we found a safe place to spend our first night.

How did the experience unfold?

The next day, after the shock of encountering a city after the earthquake that was completely collapsed, we met other volunteers who received us with open arms. They gave us a place and an opportunity to fulfill our dream of helping these people who were in an extremely precarious situation. We emptied containers of donations from around the world and participated in recreational activities and sports for several children who were orphaned to support them in their plight. It was an unforgettable trip. We learned about their culture and enjoyed unimaginable experiences. In short, when you give to others, life will return it as a boomerang.

Finally, could you tell us how this all fits with your career in fashion and advertising?

Fashion is something that I've always liked and I think it is one of many artistic aspects of my personality that I take full advantage of. I hope to learn and improve my weaknesses to make a good career environment. I would like to take this in hand with my other passions, music and volunteering. I think the more you learn, the more advantages you can have in life, and thus leave a mark in their wake.

El segundo Varna de los Coati: Performer

Son aquellos que quieren estar en una lista, tienen algun tipo de deuda con el grupo y van pagando mes a mes

El tercer Varna de los Coati: C-Assigned

Reciben algun tipo de remuneracion los Coati ?

No, por el contrario: Los Coati pagan a miembros del grupo, o al grupo en general

Que reciben a cambio los Coati ?

Los Coati en general, al ser una categoria "Yin" son recompensados mas que nada a traves del karma. Reciben cosas que no son dinero.
